

LA CASA QUE CANTA

La Casa Que Canta is an intimate hideaway, cascading invitingly down the hill to the long white sand beach of Playa la Ropa. This charming boutique hotel has welcomed and delighted guests for many years with exquisite Mexican architecture, native artifacts and spectacular panoramic ocean views, creating a truly inviting and memorable experience.

Settling into the eclectically styled rooms and suites, some with private pools, guests will not want to leave as they enjoy the local artwork and artisan hand-crafted furniture. All boast expansive balconies with stunning water vistas at every angle. Anchoring the architectural experience are two elegant pools, a salt-water pool that sits at the bottom of the promontory offering views of both the ocean and the hotel and the fresh water infinity pool, made famous by the movie "When a Man Loves a Woman", overlooking and flowing in the bay.

La Casa Que Canta offers Mexican inspired cuisine, drawing particularly from the wide selection of locally available fresh fish and seafood to create many enticing marisco and pescado dishes. Guests may enjoy breakfast and lunch at the pool terrace and dinner at the outside terrace. For those able to leave the charm of La Casa Que Canta, they can enjoy the beach of Playa la Ropa below the hotel, private sunset tours around the bay and deep sea fishing and golf.
